In the claim: Please replace original claims 1, 14, 23 and 25 with amended claims 1, 14, 23 and 25.

1. (Currently Amended) A method of selecting user-preferred programs from a plurality of programs to be viewed or stored using a memory of an audio/video apparatus, the method comprising:
obtaining a first set of user-defined criteria for identifying preferred program attributes from user input, the preferred program attributes including attributes which a program must have in order to be of interest to the user;

obtaining a second set of user-defined criteria for identifying non-preferred program attributes from user input, the non-preferred program attributes including attributes which a program must not have in order to be of interest to the user; accessing a first database that includes program information describing the plurality of programs through program attributes, the plurality of programs including at least one undesirable program having at least one preferred program attribute in combination with at least one non-preferred program attribute; and sorting through the first database using the first set of user-defined criteria and the second set of user-defined criteria to select programs that have the preferred program attributes and that do not have the non-preferred program attributes, the at least one undesirable program excluded from the selected programs.

14. (Currently Amended) An audio/video apparatus for selecting programs from a plurality of programs included in a database, the plurality of programs comprising at least one undesirable program having at least one preferred program attribute and having at least one non-preferred program attribute, the apparatus comprising:

a memory to receive and to store program information describing the plurality of programs through program attributes;

a source of user-defined criteria, wherein the user-defined criteria comprise:

a first set of user-defined criteria which identify preferred program attributes from user input, the preferred program attributes including attributes which a program must have in order to be of interest to a user; and a second set of user-defined criteria which identify non-preferred program attributes from user input, the non-preferred program attributes including attributes which a program must not have in order to be of interest to the user; and a preference module configured to sort through the program information to select programs, the program attributes of each selected program having at least one of the preferred program attributes identified by the first set of user-defined criteria and not having any of the non-preferred program attributes identified by the second set of user-defined criteria, the at least one undesirable program excluded from the selected programs.

23. (Currently Amended) A method of selecting programs from a plurality of programs to be viewed or stored using a memory of an audio/video apparatus, the method comprising:

obtaining a first set of user-defined criteria for identifying preferred program attributes from user input, the preferred program attributes including attributes which a program must have in order to be of interest to a user;

obtaining a second set of user-defined criteria for identifying non-preferred program attributes from user input, the non-preferred program attributes including attributes which a program must not have in order to be of interest to the user;

accessing a first database that includes program information describing the plurality of programs through program attributes, the plurality of programs comprising at least one desirable program having at least one preferred program attribute identified by the first set of user-defined criteria and not having any non-preferred program attributes identified by the second set of user-defined criteria, the plurality of programs further comprising at least one undesirable program having at least one preferred program attribute and having at least one non-preferred program attribute; comparing the program attributes of the desirable program and the undesirable program to the preferred program attributes; comparing the program attributes of the desirable program and the undesirable program to the non-preferred program attributes; and selecting programs from the plurality of programs, each selected program having program attributes which include at least one of the preferred program attributes identified by the first set of user-defined criteria and which do not include any of the non-preferred program attributes identified by the second set of user-defined criteria, wherein the selected programs include the desirable program and exclude the undesirable program.

25. (Currently Amended) A method of selecting programs from a plurality of programs to be viewed or stored using a memory of an audio/video apparatus, the method comprising:

obtaining a first set of user-defined criteria from user input which define at least one required program attribute corresponding to an attribute which a program must have in order that the program be of interest to the user; obtaining a second set of user-defined criteria from user input which define at least one barred program attribute corresponding to an attribute which a program must not have in order that the program be of interest to the user; accessing a first database that includes program information regarding the plurality of programs, each program having one or more program attributes which describe the program, the plurality of programs comprising at least one undesirable program having at least one required program attribute defined by the first set of user-defined criteria and having at least one barred program attribute defined by the second set of user-defined criteria; and identifying a selected set of programs of interest to the user, each program of the selected set of programs having the required program attribute defined by the first set of user-defined criteria and not having the barred program attribute defined by the second set of user-defined criteria, the at least one undesirable program excluded from the selected set of programs.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 1-23 and 25 are allowed.

The prior art of record, alone or in combination, does not teach or fairly suggest the combination of steps as recited in independent claims 1 and 14, wherein “obtaining a second set of user-defined criteria for identifying non-preferred program attributes from user input, the non-preferred program attributes including attributes which a program must not have in order to be of interest to the user; sorting through the first database using the first set of user-defined criteria and the second set of user-defined criteria to select programs that have the preferred program attributes and that do not have the non-preferred program attributes, the at least one undesirable program excluded from the selected programs”; and

The prior art of record, alone or in combination, does not teach or fairly suggest the combination of steps as recited in independent claims 23 and 25 “obtaining a second set of user-defined criteria from user input which define at least one barred program attribute corresponding to an attribute which a program must not have in order that the program be of interest to the user; identifying a selected set of programs of interest to the user, each program of the selected set of programs having the required program attribute defined by the first set of user-defined criteria and not having the barred program attribute defined by the
